Area Cancer Society Has Film Series

"Free programs featuring education films and doctor speakers are available through the American Cancer Society local office," announced Mrs. Rex Hume, area volunteer chairman.

"Clubs that are now planning summer and fall programs are urged to call the Society and schedule one of our lifesaving films," continued Mrs. Hume. "Our material is geared to all types of groups and all age levels. One of our films on smoking is widely used by teen-age organizations."

"An important part of each program is the question and answer session after the film, conducted by one of our American Cancer Society volunteer doctor speakers. We are very pleased to have a large group of doctors who support our public education program in this way."

Those interested in discussing a program are urged to write the American Cancer Society office, 804 East Manchester Blvd., Inglewood.

Architects To Nominate Study Winner

A panel of prominent Southern California architects is now in the final stages of selecting the winner of the third annual F. S. Wade scholarship award, offered by the Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Companies.

Representing communities all over Southern California, the four architects, together with a gas company representative, will name the recipient of a $1000 scholarship for study in the School of Architecture at the University of Southern California. The award this year will be given for the best design of an original family kitchen area employing specified gas equipment.

Members of the judging panel are J. Earl Trudeau of Alhambra, Joe Jordon of Burbank, Herbert Kaiser of Los Angeles, and Raymond Levanas of Newport Beach. All are members of AIA. R. B. Reynolds, staff supervisor of kitchen planning for the Southern California Gas Company, will represent the two utilities on the panel.

The annual Wade scholarship is made available to students who have completed one or more years in a college or junior college located in operating territories of the two gas companies. In addition, students from Bakersfield and Long Beach are eligible this year.
